Jude Onyema Mba's screenplay, The Agony of Africa, is a heart-wrenching and thought-provoking examination of the challenges facing the African continent. Through its powerful storytelling and vivid imagery, the screenplay sheds light on the plight of those living in poverty, the devastating effects of war and conflict, and the struggle for peace and reconciliation.

The screenplay follows the journey of a young African woman named Amina. Amina is a victim of war and has lost everything, including her family and her home. She is forced to flee her village and travel to a refugee camp, where she meets other victims of war and violence.

In the refugee camp, Amina meets a group of aid workers who are trying to help the victims of war. She also meets a young man named Joseph, who is a former child soldier. Joseph has been deeply traumatized by his experiences in the war, but he is determined to build a better future for himself and his people.

Amina and Joseph's stories are intertwined as they both struggle to come to terms with their past and build a better future for themselves and their people. The screenplay is a powerful indictment of the violence and poverty that has plagued Africa for centuries, but it is also a story of hope and resilience.
